AROUND THE TOWN

Rev. L. H. Wagner of Regina will preach in the Evangelical church on Sunday evening.

Wanted—To purchase goose or chicken feathers in any quantity. Write Box 308, Calgary, Alta.

Dr. Blake, V. S., has bought out the Palace Cafe and intends making it the best stopping house in Didsbury. Give him a call.

Lost—A gray twill overcoat on the blind line west of Didsbury on Monday, Nov. 7th. Reward given for return to Pioneer office.

Lost—A sheep lined coat between the Rosebud hill and town or in town. Leave at Coopers store or south feed barn. John L. Parker.

Telephones have now been installed on the farms as far as the Dog Pound on the river had and it is expected that the line will be completed in a very short time now.

We have received a letter signed "Witness," on Sabbath observance, but as it is somewhat lengthy it was crowded out of this week's issue and will appear in full next week.

The curling and skating rink is well on the road to completion, and Contractor Ryckman expects to have it completed well within the time specified in the contract, the 28th of November.

Wanted—the harness man is selling horse blankets, robes, sheepskin coats, mitts, gloves, etc., at exceptionally low prices. Special discount on horse blankets. See him before buying elsewhere.

Special revival services are being held in the evening in the Methodist church, east Didsbury, this week. Rev. Mr. Hollingsworth of Calgary is the principal speaker. All are cordially invited to attend.

H. W. Bierman, a homesteader near Three Hills, was killed while assisting in digging a well for Wallace Burroughs at Sarcee about three weeks ago. Mr. A. J. Bierman, a brother, is now here looking after his deceased brother's affairs.

W. Nelson, who has been manager of the Cloverhill creamery for the last two or three years, left for Sunnyslope last week to take over the creamery there which he, with Mr. R. Barron, has purchased. The many friends of Messrs. Nelson and Barron wish them every success in their new undertaking.

If at any time in the evening you should be passing along Shantz avenue and hear some weird sounds with a muffled boom! boom! don't be alarmed; it's the boys with the silver instruments who are doing their best to bring Didsbury to the front with a good band. May every success attend them.

Mr. Man! (or woman) do you know that merry, merry Christmas is only about four weeks away and that some of the shekels you own will have to be expended in satisfying those wots at home? Do your shopping early and give the clerk in the store a chance to enjoy the holiday instead of being tired out.

N. Weicker announces that he will in future take in hogs every Monday. Top prices will be paid.

Buy your White Rose gasoline and National Light coal oil from C. Hiebert & Co. Both articles are first class.

For Sale—1 new National cream separator, 450 lb. capacity, $50; 1 good second hand sewing machine, $10. Allan Good.

Mr. and Mrs. Alberta Levagood and Harry and Ira Levagood of Westcott, left on Monday, November 14th, for Detroit, Mich.

—On the blind line on Wednesday, a purse containing a large sum of money. A suitable reward will be paid for the return of this purse to the Pioneer office.

A general meeting of the members of Didsbury Agricultural Society is called for Thursday, December 8th. The time and place will be announced in our next issue.

Scott and Co, the new blacksmiths on north Railway Street are now doing business and with experienced workmen can turn out the best of work. They make a specialty of horseshoeing.

The annual town and school meeting will be held on Monday, December 5th. Don't forget this date but be on hand to assist in choosing on the sidewalks of both Council and School Board. Nominations for Mayor, four Councillors and three School Trustees also take place at the same time. Elections take place a week later.

A surprise party was given to Mr. and Mrs. Alberta Levagood on Friday, November 11th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Levagood, near Westcott, by the neighbors. A splendid evening's amusement of games and music was indulged in till a late hour when a good supper was provided by Mrs. I. H. Levagood for the guests, who departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. A. Levagood a safe journey back to their home in Detroit, Mich.

Successful Anniversary Services

The eighth anniversary of Knox church was observed on Sunday last when Rev. Mr. Hillocks, of St. Paul's church, Calgary, preached at the services in the afternoon and evening.

The church was well filled in the afternoon but the evening service drew out such a crowd that standing room was at a premium.

The reverend gentleman took for his discourse in the afternoon Matt. viii. chapter, and in the evening 1st Book of Kings, xvii. chapter 13th verse, and treated his subjects in a most eloquent and masterly manner.

On Monday evening a lecture was given in the church by Mr. Hillocks on "The Man from Gilead, a Philosopher of Sarcee." The church was filled to the doors and several people were unable to get in. The subject was a most interesting one and Mr. Hillocks certainly did full justice to his subject.

The choir of the church supplied the musical part of the evening with some very suitable anthems which were well rendered and the ladies of the church looked after the inner man (and woman) by providing a luncheon of sandwiches, cake and coffee at the conclusion of the programme.

The collections taken at all the services and at the lecture are to be devoted to clearing off the church debt of $400.

In the confusion which followed the return of the searchers it was set that three of the original party should undertake the further prosecution of the hunt for the two heirs. Lord Deppingham found ready volunteers in Chase and the faithful Selim. They prepared to go out in the hills before the night was an hour older. Selim convinced Chase that the wily Basula would carry his captives to the mines, where he was in full power.

"You're right, Selim. If he's tried that game we'll beat him at it. Ten to one if he hasn't already clucked them into the sea they're now confined in one of the mills over there."

"They were ready to start in a very short time. Selim carried a quantity of food and a small supply of brandy. Each was heavily armed and prepared for a stiff battle with the abductors."

"We seem constantly to be saying goodby to each other." Thus spoke the princess to Chase as he stood at the top of the steep ravine for Selim. The darkness hid the wan, despairing smile that gave the lie to her sprightly words.

"And I'm always doing the unexpected thing—coming back. This time I may vary the monotony by failing to return."

"I should think you could vary it more pleasantly by not going away," she said. "You must be careful!"

"The danger is here, not out there," he said meaningly.

"You mean me? But, like all danger, I soon shall pass. In a few days I shall say goodby forever and sail away."

"How much better it would be for you if this were the last goodby and I should not come back."

"For me?"

"Yes. You could marry the prince without having me on your conscience forevermore."

"Mr. Chase?"

"It's easier to forget the dead than the living, they say."

"Don't be too sure of that."

"Ah, there's Selim! Goodbye! We'll have news for you all in a hope, before long. Keep your eyes on Nenebha and Selim have arranged a set of signals. Don't be awake all night, and don't pray for me," he scoffed, in reckless mood.

The three men stood out through the still glare in the upper end of the park. Selim at once took the lead. They crept off along the black forest, keeping clear of the mountain path until they were far from the walls.

The starlight filtered down through the leafy canopy above the road, increasing rather than decreasing the density of the shadows through which they sped. Now and then, determined, inspired men could have followed the pace set by the little, sure-footed Selim.

Mile after mile fell behind them with no relaxation of energy or purpose. They were coming to the ridge road, and Selim fell back to explain the need for caution. This was the road in all likelihood, he explained, that the abductors would have used in their flight from the cavern. Two miles farther south it joined the wide highway that ran from Ararat to the mines.

Selim crept on ahead to reconnoiter. He was back in ten minutes with the information that a party of men had but lately passed along the road to ward the south. Their footprints in the soft, untrodden road were fresh. The stub of a cigarette had scarcely burned itself out.

They broke away from the road and took a less exposed route through the forest to their right, keeping well within the shadows.

in earshot of the ridge, but moving so carefully that there was slight danger of alarming the party ahead.

At last the sound of voices came to the ears of the pursuers. As they crept closer and closer they became aware of the fact that the party had halted in the roadway at the point where a sharp ledge through the rocks opened a way down into the valley. Like snakes the pursuers wriggled their way to a point just above the small basin in which the party was congregated.

A great throbbing exultation leaped up from their hearts. In plain view, at the side of the road, were the two persons for whom they were searching.

"Good luck is with us," whispered Chase unconsciously.

Lady Agnes, disheveled, her dress half stripped from her person, was seated upon a great boulder, staring hopelessly, listlessly, at the crowd of men in the roadway. Beside her stood a tall soldier, watching her and at the same time listening eagerly to the dispute that went on between his fellows. She was not bound. Her hands and feet and lips were free.

Bobby Browne was standing near her. His hands were tightly bound behind his back. His face was blood covered, and the upper part of his body was almost bare, evidence of the struggle he had waged against overwhelming odds. He was staring at the ground, his head and shoulders drooping in utter dejection.

Three of the treasure chests were standing beside the road, affording seats for as many weary carriers. It was all quite plain to Chase. Basula and his men had chained upon the two white people during one of their trips to the cave for the purpose of removing the chests.

Basula was haranguing the crowd of men in the road.

"It is the only way," he was shouting angrily. "We cannot but die. The death must be here. We are here that the others have no chance to escape to England. I am a lawyer. I know what I say. The story is the story to the ears of the government. We have them safely in our hands. The others will soon die. Then—then there can be no mistake! They must be taken to the mines and kept there until I have explained everything to the people. Part of us shall conduct them to the lower mill and the rest of us go on to the bank with these chests of gold."

Basula and six of the stoutest men prepared to continue the journey to Ararat, transporting the chests. Five sullen, resentful fellows moved over beside the captives and threw themselves down upon the grassy sward.

"We will wait here at the creek," growled one of them defiantly. "Why should we risk our necks going down the pass tonight? It is a creek. The sun will be here in three hours. Go on!"

"As you like, Abou Dal," said Basula, changing his pinched shoulders. "I shall come to the mill at five o'clock. Turning to the prisoners, he bowed low and said, with a soft laugh: "Adieu, my friends. I shall be back, sir. May your dreams be pleasant ones. Dream that you are wedded and have come into the wealth of Japan, but spare none of your money to the husband and wife who are lying awake and weeping for the foolish ones who would go searching for the Golden Fleece in a land so far away to travel, and it leads to the graveyard of fools. Adieu!"

Lady Agnes bent over and dropped her face into her hands. Her whole body was trembling convulsively. Browne did not show the slightest sign that he had heard the galling words.

At a single sharp command the six men picked up the three chests and moved off rapidly down the road, Basula striding along with the flaring torch.

They were barely out of sight when Deppingham moved as though impulse was driving him into instant action. He took upon the guards who were left behind with the unhappy prisoners. Chase laid a restraining hand upon his arm.

"Wait! Plenty of time. Wait an hour. Don't spoil everything. We'll see them sure," he breathed in triumph's ear.

The minutes slipped by with excruciating slowness. The watchful eyes of the three watchers missed nothing that took place in the little grassy basin below them.

They could have sprung almost into the center of the group from the position they occupied. Two of the men sat with their backs to the rocks, their hands clasped behind their knees. The others sprawled lazily upon the soft grass. Two torches stuck in the earth threw a weird light over the scene.

Bobby Browne was now lying with his shoulder against a fallen tree trunk, staring with unseeing gaze at the woman across the road. She was looking off into the night, steadfastly refusing to glance in his direction.

Then suddenly Lady Agnes arose to her feet and lifted her hands high toward the black dome of heaven. A luminescent, and prayed aloud to her God, the snoring boulders looking on in silent derision.

YOU CAN SEE HOW IT HEALS

No Question or Doubt as to the Healing Power of Dr. Chase's Ointment

To people who have used internal treatment in an effort to cure eczema it is almost beyond belief what benefit can be obtained by a few applications of this soothing, healing ointment.

It is seldom that the cause of eczema can be determined, but "one thing is certain, the itching must be stopped and the sores healed up. I have found this secured by the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment. The itching is relieved almost instantly, and you will be surprised at the healing which will take place overnight."

A little patience and persistent treatment with Dr. Chase's Ointment will give you more practical and definite results than a whole lot of dosing with internal medicines. You can see how the Ointment heals. The writer is a gynecologist.

Mr. Geo. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes:—"I wish to communicate to you the great benefit I received from using Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment."

For years I suffered with a great skin disease on my head, a sort of eczema. I tried almost everything, but each a fair trial, but got no better. In fact the disease spread to my left arm. I was obliged to use the Ointment advertised and began using it. Persistent use of this treatment has entirely cured me, and I give you a statement of my case with pleasure, as I hope thereby to induce some other sufferer to try the same Dr. Chase's Ointment."

Because this ointment has made its worldwide reputation by curing the most severe and long-standing cases of eczema and piles is no reason why you should overlook its scores of uses in the relief of itching and irritation of the skin.

Condition Precedent.

"The religion of some people is too religion," said Bishop Hewitt in a recent address in Nanaimo.

"Some people suggest to me, in their view of religion, a little girl whose teacher said to her:—

"We must sin first, the little girl answered."

Guest—I cannot do so.

Clerk—What do you mean by taking a room if you haven't money enough to pay for it?

Guest—I had money enough when I took it, but I knew nothing about the union rates for waiters, and I have since given one a tip.—New York Press.

His One Good Trait.

Jones—How can I ever be to borrow money I try to borrow it from a peasant.

Strown—Why?

Jones—A peasant never expects to get it back.—New Zealand Free Lance.

GENESIS OF GULLIVER.

How the Famous Satire and Fantasy Came to Be Written.

When the Deanery of St. Patrick's fell to Swift, he regarded it as a recompense proportioned to his merits, and as a provision ungenial to his taste; but he accepted it as a relief from the wreck of all his hopes. He came to Ireland, then, filled with that hatred for her soil which he felt in spite of the accident of Irish birth, ever cling to his English parentage, disappointed with the result of all his efforts, his weapon of satire sharpened by the bitterness of political strife; and hopeless of the future. The one element of his genius which now overshadowed all others was his sarcastic force; and that sarcasm found abundant food amid his new surroundings. The gliding wrongs of Ireland, the contemptuous indifference of English statesmen; the pettinous of the circle around him; the waste, the misery, the oppression—all these burned into a spirit only too ready to lash itself into rage, and to wreck its anger on the nearest victim. During all these earlier years of Irish banishment, he was in constant correspondence with the English, whose genius was the one redeeming feature of the time to him, but who, like all the world, were turning their backs around them with profound disgust.

The first subject that drew him back to Ireland was the wrong suffered by Ireland. His indignation first found voice in a pamphlet on the "Case of Irish Manufactures," and it presently seized on a still more available topic, present by a scandalous indifference of the English to the copper coinage of Ireland. This gave rise to the famous "Drapier Letters." Swift, in his words, he hesitated at no exaggeration; he left his victims with no shred of defence, and he exerted his sarcasm, he wrested new and more damming charges; he raged the changes on this topic through the note of fierce denunciation and contemptuous sarcasm; and for the first time he roused the public mind.

In this fight, however force and exciting, could not employ the whole force of Swift's genius. In his contempt for the stupidity of the English colonists against their return across the sea.

It was such surroundings, and such feelings that the "Travels of Gulliver" were composed, and their publication, in 1726, followed immediately upon Swift's last visit to London, and preceded by the Londoners the death of Stella—Sir Henry Craske.

Disappointed Brides.

"Everybody knows the story told by Charles Dickens of the lady who went to her room and would not suffer the wedding feast to be removed from the table, because the wedding was interrupted. There are three or four others in which a lifelong seclusion followed."

Two of these ladies were in the year 1778. One of them, Mary Lydia Lucrine, a maiden lady, was called a "gentle" fortune—I have reason to believe that the adjective meant something not exactly complimentary. She lived on many years in her lodgings in Oxford street, never going outside the rooms, and never admitting the light of the sun. The other, whose name is not given in my authority, lived in Chancery Lane, and was a very old woman, and always by the light of a lamp or candle. Ten years before this in the year 1758, one Esther Claridge lived in her lodgings on Tower Hill, where she had lived for thirty years. It would appear as if in matter of love, it was thought respectable and the right thing to do, if those matters went wrong, to make retreat from the world. The mediæval world, never going outside her doors, and there cursed a broken heart; in the last century she went upstairs, pulled down the curtains, and shutters and the curtains, lit a candle, and sat down in dignity to weep. Her friends tried to get her to go to the sea, and of a "gentle" fortune, like Mary Lydia Lucrine, she provided no assistance. She was a very old woman, with a glass of cordial. If, however, she had no money, she had to stay at home and weep with the old domestic duties. In that case she speedily picked together the fragments of the broken heart, and sewed them up, and was worse for the fracture and the recovery, to another man.

Ominous Words.

"That writer says he is going to print an absolutely truthful and impartial analysis of your career."

"Absolutely truthful and impartial!" said the man.

"Great Scott! I wonder what I have done to offend him?"

Paring an Elephant's Nails.

When an elephant is in captivity the nature of his habits permits the beast's nails to grow to an abnormal length, thus the necessity for the careful paring of the nails. After the elephant has been securely roped the nails are cut with a saw.—London Sketch.

HOW TO CURE STOMACH TROUBLE

A Great Sufferer from Indigestion Tells How She Was Cured

Stomach trouble is a general name for all forms of indigestion, whether great pain after eating, belching of wind, heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, or the sharp pains that often make you think you have heart trouble. There are two things not curable in indigestion. One is that doctors always find indigestion a prominent symptom in all bloodless, run-down state. The other, that sufferers usually find relief when a tonic is taken that restores the general health. Without a doubt stomach trouble is simply stomach weakness, and the cure is to make the stomach strong enough to digest food without trouble. Any other treatment is patchwork and cannot cure. The causes of indigestion are controlled by the blood and nerves, the stomach that is too weak to digest food must be tonic to give it strength. And in all the world there is no better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They actually make the stomach rich red blood, tone the nerves and so strengthen the stomach and all the body functions. I will submit the following as proof that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured even the most obstinate cases of stomach trouble. Miss John Graf, Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., says: "For years I suffered from indigestion. I actually took many different medicines, but instead of benefiting me, they made me worse. I could not eat, and my stomach got so bad I could not eat. I did not drink without pain. Even water would cause me suffering. Nor did I get any relief when the pills were empty, as I still suffered from indigestion. I went from Edmonton and consulted one of the best doctors. He told me that all I could do was to eat water and a small piece of brown bread for my meals, but even that would not do me any good. I was ever being well again. I bought a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in six months, but it was simply money wasted. Then one day a friend asked me to try them. I bought a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did not know they were intended for cure indigestion, but because they did not seem to try them. I soon found the Pills helping me, but my condition was so bad that I did not think I could try them. I took the Pills for about five months before I felt that I was completely cured. I could eat any kind of food, and although more than two years have passed since my cure, I have not had any more of the trouble. I can most heartily recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone suffering from this terrible trouble."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at someone once said concerning Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, "Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont."

Ignorance No Excuse.

Sheriff Guy, a well-known Scots legal luminary, has, says The Western Mailer, been telling some stories of lawyers and the courts. Mentioning the maxim, "Ignorance of the law is no excuse," the sheriff said a pompous Edinburgh barrister, when sitting as magistrate at the police court, had a man brought before him charged with committing a police offence. The accused, when asked to plead, admitted that he committed the offence, but added that he did not know he was doing any wrong. "Ignorance of the law excuses no one," pompously asserted the magistrate. "Then why did they make you a barrister?" was the ready response.

Descendant of Three Kings.

"Burleigh by name and burly by mail at someone once said concerning Lord Burleigh of Burleigh; and certainly his lordship is a fine specimen of the vigorous Scotman. He is not afraid of calling a spade a spade, as was well illustrated in his speech at the London Convention while his Parliamentary work has been very extensive. Lord Burleigh is, by the way, an actual descendant of the three kings. He is a Bruce who can right by claim descent from King Robert Bruce of Scotland. The name was possessed of a "gentle" fortune, like Mary Lydia Lucrine, she provided no assistance. She was a very old woman, with a glass of cordial. If, however, she had no money, she had to stay at home and weep with the old domestic duties. In that case she speedily picked together the fragments of the broken heart, and sewed them up, and was worse for the fracture and the recovery, to another man."

Concrete Fence Posts Like These

are slightly, strong, permanent. Concrete is, in many localities, cheaper than wood, for fence posts, and more durable than stone, brick or iron. Our book, "What The Farmer Can Do With Concrete" is sent FREE.

It tells how to make, not only fence posts, but walks, curbs, horse blocks, barn foundations, feeding floors, well curbs, drinking troughs, silos, dairies, and many other farm utilities where cleanliness, strength and durability are required. Many of these things are simple and inexpensive to make, and may easily be put together in your spare time. The book carefully and simply tells all. The regular price of the book is $1. We are distributing free, a limited number, however, and charging up the cost to advertising. That's why you get your copy free, if you sign the coupon and send it today. Do it now.

There is little danger from a cold or from an attack of the grip except when followed by pneumonia, and this never happens when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. This remedy has won its great reputation and extensive sale by its remarkable cures of colds and grip and can be relied upon with implicit confidence. For sale by dealers everywhere.

The Provincial Sunday School Convention held at Calgary last week decided to hold their next convention at Edmonton. E. Michener, M. P. of Red Deer, was elected president. W. Jordan, Lethbridge, recording secretary and A. B. Cushing, Calgary, treasurer.

Only wind is needed to spread rumors but for reliable news you must read your home paper.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets do not sicken or gripe, and may be taken with perfect safety by the most delicate woman or the youngest child. The old and feeble will also find them a most suitable remedy for aiding and strengthening their weakened digestion and for regulating the bowels. For sale by dealers everywhere.

Essay Competition for Empire Day

The following are the subjects and conditions for the essay competitions inter-all secondary schools and inter-all primary schools of the Empire for 1911.

A. Secondary Schools - A Silver Challenge Cup, value £10. 10s., presented by the Right Hon. the Earl of Meath, K. P., to be held by the school, and a personal prize of £3 5s., given by the League of the Empire, for an Empire Day essay not exceeding 2,000 words. Age limit, 14 to 20.

Subject - The Value of English Literature as a bond of union for the English speaking races.

B. Primary Schools - A Silver Challenge Cup, value £10. 10s., presented by the Right Hon. the Earl of Meath, K. P., and a personal prize of £3 5s., given by the League of the Empire, is offered for competition, inter-all elementary schools of the Empire, for an Empire Day Essay not exceeding 1,000 words. Age limit, under 14 years old.

Subject - Describe an ordinary day of your life so as to make it clear to those who live in different surroundings.

Conditions - 1. All essays must be certified by the teacher, parent or guardian of a child in the following terms:

"I certify that this essay is the unaided composition of the boy or girl in whose name it is sent in." Signed by teacher, parent or guardian.

Note - This note is not intended to preclude a teacher from answering any reasonable requests for information, or from indicating books where such information may be found; but an essay must not be a mere reproduction of a lesson given in class.

It is not expected that the essay will be written without reference to the ordinary and authoritative sources of information on the subject; but it is expected that the information will be thoroughly assimilated and rendered in the writer's own language in the essay offered for competition.

2. All essays must first be judged in the schools, only the best one from each school being sent in for consideration. In cases where the educational authorities are kindly co-operating with the league the essays should be forwarded through that department.

As the usual sources of information in regard to the subject are best known in the competitor's own country, it is hoped that the authorities transmitting the essays will examine them and refrain from sending on essays which do not satisfy the conditions explained under head 1.

3. All essays must reach the central office of the League of the Empire, Cannon Hall, Westminster, London, Eng., by the 1st of March, 1911.

4. Any essay exceeding the word limit or written by a child over age will be disqualified.

5. Essays shall be written on one side of the paper only, and the competitor's full name and address, date of birth and school should be clearly given. The age limits laid down will be taken on Empire Day, 1911.

The names of the winning schools will each year be engraved upon the cups, which are replicas of the Warwick Vase.

Handling a R

To the majority of people it will hardly occur that there is a right and a wrong way about so simple a matter as knocking around in an old rowboat. But there undoubtedly is, and what is more, the knowledge of how to properly handle a small boat will not only increase one's pleasure in using it, but will also add to one's safety and may possibly avoid serious accidents.

The first thing to learn about a skiff is, of course, how to row it, and it may be well to start with the statement that the stroke best adapted to propelling the ordinary rowboat, skiff or dinghy is totally different from the one taught to the oarsman or sculler for craft provided with outriggers or sliding seats, or both. The hulls are so dissimilar in build and weight that the power must be applied in a totally different way.

Sitting erect, but not stiffly, take firm hold of the oars at the extreme ends, fingers on top, palms on the inside. The right palm hangs from your right oar, the left palm from your left oar. The arms are stretched bend- ing forward until oars are at an angle of about forty-five degrees to the keel, turn blades at right angles to the water, lift hands so that the oars are well above the water, then pull down, arms still bent, until covered (but no more), throw shoulders back, drawing in arms at the same time and drive oars through the water with a steady pull until body is a little beyond the oars. Then push hands close to chest. Then drop hands to allow oars to come above the surface, lowering the wrists meanwhile that by the time the blades are clear of the water they (the blades) are holding the

The turning of the blade from an up right to a horizontal position, as it leaves the water, is called "feathering" and has as object the easy clearing of the water and the offering of the least resistance to wind and wave on the recovery. The fact is given special mention because of the unlimited that the name of skill in feathering is reached by trailing the oar gracefully along the surface. As this retards speed and is considered very bad form it should be avoided.

When two or more people are rowing together in the same boat, the one seated next the stern acts as the "coxswain," or "cox," who directs the crew, each taking the time from the one before them and trying to dip and come out at the same moment. It is not advisable in a skiff for two people to row in tandem, as the person at the bow is no beginner as he finds of doing this. This method of rowing, termed "sweep" rowing, calls for special ears, forged in the hindle and handle than the ordinary rowing ears, and even when they are available it requires consummate skill to keep a straight course with them, unless a steersman and a rudder are on hand. It is a fact that in a skiff only one pair of oars is available, for them to take turns.

One should get into a small boat by stepping directly over the keel, or as near to it as possible, either on the sea or at once onto the floor planking. To step on the gunwale is to court a capsize. In assisting others, and particularly women, it is wisdom to seize the gunwale with one hand to steady the craft while offering the other to the person. Also, one should face the way one expects to sit, getting in, that there may

The disposition of the passengers should be given special attention by the man taking out a party of several. The weight should be evenly distributed, not only so that the boat is on her keel, but also that she may be on her lines at the bow and stern. Apart from the fact that a skiff travels faster and with less effort, when on her lines, all floating objects are susceptible to winds, and an ill-trimmed craft of any description will be hard to keep on its course if any air is stirring.

It is an extremely important one. Indeed, it is an extremely impossible thing, certainly an extremely hard one, to hold a badly balanced craft on its course if anything like a stiff breeze is blowing.

For the sake of those who use skills while in bathing, it may be well to say that the right way to climb into a bath

To come up to a landing place, do not approach head-on, but at an angle, and if the tide or current is running, and you have the choice, face the current. Take the near oar out of the lock as soon as you are near enough not to have to do any more rowing, and use the off oar to guide yourself in. In landing, the bow man should get out first, taking the painter with him, and then steady the boat for the

THE WORLD'S NEW WHEAT CENTRE
(By Robert Macbray, in the Daily Mail)

THIE excited and continued rise in the price of wheat during the last fortnight, combined with the apprehension of a poor harvest, has caused a great deal of speculation. The fact that Winnipeg, which came into existence only forty years ago, is becoming the wheat centre of the world.

To one who, like myself, has seen Winnipeg grow from a collection of shanty huts to a city of 150,000 people, and, superlatively enough, on the north side of the old Hudson's Bay Company's post, Fort Garry, to the greatest city in the West, the phenomenal population of 150,000, the remarkable development which is taking place in the foothold of the food box, ex, that man's people thought vain, cherished by

In the "fall" of a year in the late 'seventies I was driving one afternoon from the Hudson's Bay Company's store in Winnipeg to St. John's, w

Not only does Manitoba hard wheat stand at the top of the milling wheats of the world, but the production, by its bigness or its smallness, of wheat in the North-West of Canada is governing at this moment the price of bread in every part of the globe.

Winnipeg may be likened, roughly speaking, to the apex of a gigantic, irregularly shaped triangle, one leg of which reaches to the south, the two other stretches westward along the international boundary to the Crow's Nest in the Kootenays of British Columbia, while the other reaches far to the west, to the foot of the Rockies in the upper valleys of the Peace River. The foothills of the Rockies forming the base. On Winnipeg, the apex, converge all the railways traversing the country, and the city is the hub, which includes hundreds of millions of acres of actual or potential wheat lands in the western main lines and the dozens of branches of the Canadian Pacific, the Canadian Northern and trans-continental Pacific Railroads.

was pretty nearly what was required to supply the chronic deficiency in Great Britain and other parts of Europe. That deficiency was, and is about two hundred million bushels, and over and above the surplussage of wheat received from India, Australia, and the Argentine, it had to be and was met by the surplussage obtained from North America, principally from the United States.

This state of things has been offset by increased areas of wheat production in the West, but not everywhere at the same time; but nowhere to anything like the same extent as in the Canadian Northwest, which last year had a yield of about 150,000,000 bushels, of which 100,000,000 bushels were available for export. This year, most unfortunately, there seems to be small prospect of anything like the same quantity. Recent advices from Minneapolis speak of a much better crop of half crops owing to a long spell of very hot weather in Manitoba and the North-West, which has burnt up the plants, the wheat in the Dakotas, and the two Dakotas. Thus the all important spring wheat areas were not able to do a great deal to supply the usual requirements of Europe. The result is that the price of the principal wheat which has taken place, the

to this rise Winnipeg hailed the world. Many years have passed since the first time the price of wheat had a dominating effect on the price of the cereal; the rise or fall of Chicago has been the determining factor. At a very short time ago (I judge paid) but little attention to Winnipeg, where the price of wheat was quoted, was given, and the quotations of the former. Now it is the other way about. It is Winnipeg that is the determining factor, and cables announced that a fresh rise over a penny a bushel at the noon of the 10th of May had been the result. The morning was accounted for by the price of wheat having gone up at that amount in London. The market was closed Thursday and before Friday's report for market. As an old-time Winnipeg trader told me, "I have seen the market for wheat close on Saturday and the next day the price was up in my eyes, for I had scarcely realized how great a share cent Winnipeg had in the market." The present position is that we have what the prominent position which the wonderful new city of it has taken in the world of wheat in fixing the price of wheat in all the

THE "ZOO" HOSPITAL
(By Leslie Mainland)

(By Leslie Mainland)

Till the present hospital was built in Regent's Park such pitiful incidents were unavoidable. Animals in sickness were treated with all humanity, but it was often impossible to remove them from their cages, and their savage natures rendered medical treatment out of the question.

No. 1.—Pair of hunting dogs from Uganda. Kept under observation lest they communicate any disease to other animals.

The baby seemed afflicted with a kind of spinal paralysis and repeatedly toppled over sideways when trying to hop. It was hoped that by rest, quiet, and well feeding the

No. 7.—Chamois with skin trouble. An embrocation is working wonders, and, on the whole, the patient submits to the treatment wonderfully well.

No. 11.—Wallaby with wound on the tail. As the risk of infection is great in an open pedicle the animal has been removed here to have the place carefully dressed and tended.

how a domesticated cat or dog will seek dark and quiet corners when ill or injured. In the case of wild animals the instinct to get away from the kind is even stronger. (For more details on this, see the book "The Animal Kingdom," by J. H. Green, D. Van Nostrand Co., New York, 1911.)

Just a pace beyond ward No. 12 is the beautifully clean operating theatre complete with table and water supply which would not disgrace a hospital intended for human beings. After all, surgical cleanliness is as necessary the recovery of a four-footed as of a two-legged patient. Here, under the best possible conditions, one of the best known veterinary surgeons in London inflicts "wounds of mercy" on the animal—be it gazelle or gorilla—which needs the knife before it can again take its place in the public cages. The same aseptic treatment and anaesthesia to which mankind owes so much as to the disposal of the "Zoo" patients. Two sizes of movable "anaesthetizing are observed through glass windows lead into the woodwork. After a few restless movements the patient begins to get drowsy, and finally topples over into insensibility. The animal is then removed for operation, but an uncommonly sharp eye is kept upon it in case the effects of the anaesthetic wear off for an active, indignant leopard, for example, is an extremely difficult patient to deal with when in full possession of its faculties.

Here are a few sample operations:

- (1) A lynx afflicted with distemper. A cure, of course, it would be impossible to rub any liniment into the fur of the conscious animal, the lynx was chloroformed twice and sometimes three or even four times a day, the best of his skin. Its fur in about a month recovered its full beauty.
- (2) The broken wing of a valuable goose was set, strapped to its side and a perfect recovery was the result.
- (3) A panther, whose overgrown claws threatened serious injury to the owner, was lured into the anaesthetizing box, chloroformed, and the offending weapons clipped into reason.

(1) A tapin, with a glandular swelling in the neck, was operated on, the source of the trouble being lanced, drained, and cleansed. Good recovery.

Big and little, savage and meek, all the wild things at Regent's Park owe their debt of gratitude to the humanitarians of the Zoological Society who have given them this most perfectly equipped organization for easing their sufferings.

THUNDER AND LIGHTNING
There Are Interesting Features About a Storm Which Few Take Into Consideration

There Are Interesting Features About it

NOT many people can regard a thunderstorm with an intelligent interest and seek for the cause which produces it. Some people look

The thunderstorm, notes a writer in T. P.'s Weekly, was one of Nature's mysteries till Benjamin Franklin, in 1749, showed by a happy and bold experiment the identity of the light

On the horizon a cloud of a peculiar shape may be seen banking itself up like a wall, and then, as it rises, the cloud is a dense black, and forms over head. If you watch it, you can see the lightning bolts striking it, and the battle. All clouds are naturally charged more or less with electricity. The smaller the cloud has of water which composes it, the more electricity it has. The particles may have what is known as a positive charge, others a negative. This is the reason why the clouds have all the notions of a cloud bent on business. It heaves itself up as if some unseen power were forcing it up. It is the means of attraction and repulsion. The consequence is that parts of clouds are repelled, and other parts are attracted, so that they can carry. The charge becomes cramped for room, and the particles are forced to get together. The charge leaps across the intervening air gap from cloud to cloud, or from cloud to earth in the shape of a lightning flash.

This is a dangerous time. In its path to earth, lightning knows of no obstacles. The duration of the flash seldom lasts more than a few hundred thousandths of a second, but this inconceivable space of time it can traverse at the rate of 100,000 feet per second, the flash will pass harmlessly to earth; but if the conductor be imperfect, or if the mass work of a chimney is not of a proper size, the lightning is shattered as if it were built of earthenware. Sometimes there are heat effects, and sometimes the air is so compressed that other effects of lightning are produced on compass needles. The magnetism of some sensitive instruments is destroyed, the sailor must alter his course, and an unknown error in the pointing of the compass may have the result of wrecking a ship. In the case of lightning, has been known to turn about and make for home, under the impression that it was on its outward course.

Egg and Beet Salad

1 gilded beet or several slices of pickled beet, 1 saltspoon pepper, 1 egg, 1 saltspoon salt, 1 lemon.

Chop the beet rather fine. Drop the eggs into a shallow pan of boiling water and poach them carefully. Lift them on a skinner, dish and sprinkle them with the lemon juice. Dust the beets with salt and pepper. When ready to serve, put each egg, which is now very cold and neatly trimmed, into the centre of a nest of lettuce leaves. Cover it with the chopped beet and cut in the centre a teaspoonful of salad dressing. Serve at once, with nut and walrus as a summer supper dish.

Neapolis News

We understand that the young man who preached to us two weeks ago has been returned on the circuit.

John Dougherty has purchased Bert Harding's fine driving mare for two hundred dollars. All parties pleased.

Josiah Eby is not running his hay press at present as he seems to have difficulty in keeping a hand. He thinks it would be some consolation if he knew what became of them.

H. H. Reimer will conduct the creamery business for himself from now on.

Mr. McLaren was on the sick list the first part of the week but is better at the present writing.

Wilson Brothers of Three Hills took dinner at J. D. Ward's Friday. They were on their return trip from marketing cattle in Didsbury.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Bell have the sympathy of all in the loss of their baby, Ethel, who died Friday morning.

Our young friend Clifford Gregg, lately removed from this vicinity, has successfully passed the mail service examinations and has been appointed railway mail clerk on the Regou division. Success has a way of coming to those who work for it.

Bert Harding has bought the Graves mares, one of the best male teams in the country.

The total eclipse of the moon was very plainly visible on Wednesday evening.

Rev. Bird has a new daughter whom he has not yet seen. The infant and its mother are at Fox Coulee where Mrs. Bird is being cared for by her mother.

Edmon Cooke is holding down his homestead these days.

The Willing Workers are planning another entertainment in the near future. Arrange to be present as these young people are sure to provide a pleasant time for you. The financial part is quite necessary, their first object being to purchase one of their social headquarters and good will.

One of our young ladies had a most unpleasant experience one evening last week on the road east of Neapolis with a miscreant in the clothes of a man, but thanks to stout muscles and good lungs, escaped with no worse injury than a good scare. It is to be hoped that the woman who has been committed to Calgary, will receive the hint of the law, that girls, don't you believe that, if you haven't a safe escort, there's no place like home—especially after dark?

A large congregation were out to hear Rev. Bird Sunday afternoon, and his excellent sermon on "The Mission of Christ to Man," was well appreciated.

The W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. R. C. Oulman Thursday. Some business was disposed of and officers elected for the coming year.

Must Clean Snow off Sidewalks

The Council met in regular session on Monday night in the Council chamber, Mayor Atkins, Councilors Moyer, St. Clair, Osmond, Good, Liesemer and Sec. Reed being present.

A letter was read from Councilor Osmond, containing his resignation as Councilor for the ensuing year.

After many words of appreciation and kindness from the Mayor and Councilors present, who used their efforts in trying to induce the Councilor to withdraw his resignation, it was moved by St. Clair Moyer - That the Council very reluctantly accept the resignation of Councilor Osmond. Carried.

A resolution was moved and seconded by Councilors Liesemer and Good that the C. P. R. be requested to extend the station platform both north and south for the better convenience of the public. Carried.

The matter of lighting the streets was also discussed and it transpired that the Mr. M. Weller, proprietor of the flour mills, was willing to meet the Council and take up the matter of lighting by electricity.

A committee from the Council will meet Mr. Weller but very little can be done by the present Council as most of them retire in a few weeks, consequently this will be a matter for the new Council to look into.

The fact that the ratpayers did not clean off the snow from the sidewalks opposite their premises since the recent snow storm was also taken up, and it was decided that the constables should enforce the by-law covering this.

The Council then adjourned.

For Sale.

I have two first class horses for sale. One is a three year old Clyde. He won first in Scotland as a yearling against strong competition. The other is a seven year old Clyde horse which won first at Chicago and reserved champion as a two year old and was twice first at Portage la Prairie, and yearling and two year old gets of this horse won first in their respective classes and championship and res. champ. as the best Canadian bred stallions at the same show, 1910.

I will sell these horses at prices that will defy competition. Geo. Davidson, Golden West Hotel, Didsbury.

Yorkshires For Sale

Oak Lodge Charmer 7th (imp. in dam), 1st prize boar and reserve champion at Calgary Fair, 1910. Undoubtedly the best boar owned in Alberta. Young sows of breeding age sired by the above boar and out of 1st prize sow at Calgary in 1909 and 2nd prize in 1910. This sow produced 53 living pigs in three litters. Also stock of different ages from other productive strains. This is the last opportunity to procure stock from these strains as the herd is being dispersed. Glenn Bros., three miles east of Didsbury.

"I do not believe there is any other medicine so good for whooping cough as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," writes Mrs. Francis Turpin, Junction City, Ore. This remedy is also unsurpassed for colds and croup. For sale by dealers everywhere.

from the Traders Bank is just as simple and easy as putting it in.

Fill out a Cheque, as illustrated, payable to yourself, present it with your Pass-Book, and you get, without delay or formality of any kind, as much money as you want, up to your total balance.

But you cannot have a balance to draw on unless you first put it in. Why not deposit some now.

Can you figure fast?
Do you understand accounts?
And a little of business law?
And the typewriter?
And shorthand?
